In January, 1850......$31,541 28 Increase, nearly 331 per cent.... $9,960 04 The New-Haven Road freight is not included in the above as the returns had not been received-

This would add considerably to the above amount were it in. Moses Maynard, Jr., late Receiver, has been elected President of the Long Island Railroad Company and Mr. L. C. Clark of St Louis has been elected a Director, vice Mr. E. W. Clark,

A resolution has been passed by the Board to purchase new cars and engines and heavy iron to relay the Brooklyn and Jamaica portion of the Road, and a Committee appointed to carry the resolution into effect. A Committee was also appointed to confer with the Brooklyn and Jamaica Road upon the subject of a consolidation of the two Roads under the title of the Brooklyn and Greenport Railroad. The Long Island Road is now under efficient management in the hands of practical men, and will be put in perfect order, that the service of the Road may be done to the entire satisfaction of the public.

A new Bank, to be called the "Bank of North America," is in progress of formation, of which Mr. Fisk, late of the American Exchange Bank, is to be President, and Mr. Isaac Seymour, of the Westchester Bank, Cashier. The list which we saw at Massrs. Gilbert & Johnson's office contained some large subscriptions.

A locomotive probably ran over the Erie Road to-day from Hornellsville to Cuba and thus another link of this great work, fifty miles in length, is completed and in working order. This new extension will be open to the public in a few days Eighteen miles east from Dunkirk is also ironed and ready for the locomotive, and of the remaining distance, some 25 or 30 miles only are not ready for the iron.

The Michigan Southern Railroad Company, and the Michigan Central Railroad Company, have been engaged in an active canvass before the Indiana Legislature, in regard to the right of way for the Railroad from Michigan City to the western line of the State of Indiana.

The Michigan Southern Company had obtained control of several Indiana charters, under which they claimed an exclusive right to build a Railroad around the head of Lake Michigan, from Michigan City in the direction of Chicago .-They organized in Indiana under the name of the Northern Indiana Railroad Company; and they applied to the Legislature of that State for an act which should vest in the Northern Indiana Railroad Company all the rights and privileges which had been previously conferred upon the several Companies whose charters they had secured. This application was rigorously opposed by parties who sought to obtain a right to build another and parallel road from Michigan City west. The question as to the existing right of the Michigan Southern Company under the charter which had been assigned to them, was referred to the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, which reported favorably to the Southern Company, and the Legislature accordingly granted their application, and passed the act whereby, among other things, an exclusive right is secured to the Northern Indiana Company (which is merely a continuation of the Michigan Southern Road through Indians) to construct a railroad from Michigan City west toward Chicago. Subsequently the friends of the Central Company introduced a bill authorizing them to construct a road from La Fayette to Michigan City. and thence westerly toward Chicago; but the Legislature refused to interfere with the vested rights of the other Company, and the bill was re-

The Northern Indiana Company has books open in this City for subscriptions for the remainder of its stock, most of which has been already taken. It is a road which is remarkable for the cheapness with which it can be constructed. It commenced at the point in the southern boundary line of Michigan, where the Michigan Southern Road terminates, and extends thence westerly, through the State of Indiana, by way of Michigan City, toward Chicago. The entire line from the Michi. gan Southern Road to Chicago is about 115 miles long; and Mr. Jervis, the Chief Engineer of the Company, estimates that it can be finished, with a heavy rail, for less than $10,000 P mile; and that when provided with ample station accommodations, and equipment for the immense traffic which is destined to pass over it, it will not have cost to exceed $13,000 per mile. When it is remembered that this is a trunk road, forming part of the great Northern line from the Atlantic to the Mississippi, it cannot be doubted that, from its small cost, and with its valuable chartered right, it must prove one of the most productive and valuable railroad stocks in the country.

A section has passed the Indiana Constitutional Convention applying all surpluses in the Treasury, proceeds of the sale of Public Works belonging to the State, to the payment of the State debt.

The increase of business on the Madison and Indianapolis Road during the past year, presents a most gratifying result. The following table will show the increase in the leading articles of traffic, as compared with 1849. It is to be borne in mind, that before the crop of this year came into market the freight transportation was very light; and that the comparison is very nearly that of the last six months of 1850 with the year 1849:

COLLEGE POINT, FLUSHING. COLLEGE POINT, FLUSHING.—
Such is the name given to a village just laid out on Flushing Bay, between Flushing Village and the East River, distant from Flushing village one-fourth of a mile. The new village is situated on the well-known Stratton farm, embracing about 300 lots; 50 feet front and 160 deep, where at high tide the largest vessel can land at the village docks, and where passenger steamers can always land whatever the state of the tide. The village is beautifully isled out, being a rise of ground, the finest side in the whole region, and a plank travelway is being laid out between it and Flushing, to be completed the present week.

Fine Parks are reserved in the center of the village, and the streets are taid out in the best manner. The location compasses fine atmosphere and a delightful view up and down the river. 200 of the lots are already sid, and if we mistake not greatly the balance will very soon be taken, the distance being but eight miles from this city, with almost hourly communication by steam, and a plank carriage road constructed between Flushing and Whitiamsburgh, affording every facility for reaching New York early and leaving it late in the day. We regard College Point, Flushing, as the most desirable subub residence within a circle of 25 miles around New-York. Messrs. Longley & Flammer, the enterprising projectors of the village, have a card nour columns giving details of the terms, acc upon which sales of lots will be made.

As some would no doubt desire more than one lot, such person can, before the recording of the maps, purchase or secure as many lots, even to a block, as be may desire, and select location also. We recommend such as are contemplating a suburban residence to call on LONGLEY & FLAMMER, at the lothice, No. 227 Woosterst, one door from Amity st. N. Y. where the subscription book is open from 4 to 6 P M.
